

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Wednesday, November 9, 2011
"B" Day

Attention all key clubbers! Meet in the east gym this Friday at 2:45 for the group yearbook photo. Stay after to make fleece blankets for Project Linus. Don't forget to wear your red key club t-shirt and invite your friends!

Have you ever wanted to be a Super Hero? Or a Super Villain? Now's your chance! Audition for the school play -- May the Farce Be with You! – a comedy spoof of all your favorite super heroes and villains. Will you be Acrobat Man, H2O Girl, or the EVIL Star Raider? Pick up your audition packet in the SC office, the NC office, or outside room NC 100. Auditions will be held Tuesday, Nov 29 and/or Wednesday, November 30, with callbacks on Friday, December 2. Contact Mrs. Markano or Ms. Singletary with any questions. Come "battle" it out!

Come join Arrowhead JSA tonight to hear a mock debate between the 2012 Republican Presidential candidates. The meeting will be from 6-7:30 in Mr. Tower's North Campus room 162. Bring $3 to become an official member so you can stick around after the meeting for soda, cookies, and other treats.

Reminder: Applications for the Herb Kohl Scholarship are due Friday, November 11. Late applications cannot be accepted. See your counselor for details.

The food drive started Monday and will continue until November 18. Bring non-perishable food items to your first hour class. Donuts will be given to the winning class.

The I BACK JACK Foundation, an organization that supports and raises awareness of childhood cancer, is having the World's Largest Game of Bananagrams on Saturday, November 12 at 9:00 a.m. at Arrowhead High School. The cost is $15, which includes a t-shirt plus many other prizes. It is definitely worth it! Attendees also have the opportunity to individually fundraise for the event. Just go to www.ibackjack.kintera.org to register and help to save a little boy or girls life.

The next Forensics Meeting will be tomorrow, November 10 at 2:45 in room 126 at North Campus. Contact Mr. Schmid if you can't make the meeting.