

2021 - 2022 Arrowhead Student Community Service Projects

Boys Soccer

Institute of Technology Academy school supplies drive.

The Institute of Technology Academy (ITA) www.instituteoftech.org is a K8 private school choice program in Milwaukee. They work to break the endless cycle of poverty in their community and prepare their kids for a great career, life and future. Since many students in their community struggle to graduate from high school, their goal is to become a K12 school to help their students throughout their whole education. They do a great job providing resources, supplies and tools for the whole family since many don't have a place to live, no transportation, can't provide food for their family, and are illiterate so struggle to find resources on their own.

Arrowhead Boys Soccer will be collecting school supplies to help ITA and their families. Most of their students come in with no supplies. They could benefit from just the school supplies such as crayons, colored pencils, markers, pencils, pens, notebooks, paper, etc.

Girls Tennis

The football players also held the door for teachers and staff entering school every Friday for 3 weeks distributing donuts to start their day.

Boys Volleyball

The boys volleyball program created a fundraiser for Habitat For Humanity called 'Houses For Homes'. For every house block the team recorded this season, the boys asked for donations. Currently the fundraiser has raised over $1,500 towards Habitat for Humanity in Waukesha County.

Boys Golf

The MACC Fund Invitational raised over $108,000 for the MACC Fund this year (the first time breaking the $100,000 threshold). This year there were two tournaments held, one at Erin Hills and one at The Club at Lac La Belle with 48 total teams participating!

Increased participation leads to a second tourney to be held this weekend

By Rob Reischel

Two tournaments. One goal.

For 15 years, the MACC Fund Invitational was one of the state's marquee boys golf tournaments. That won't change on Saturday when the event tees off for the 16th time.

What has changed, though, is the tournament's name. And it's size.

For the first time ever, the MACC Fund Invitational has become the MACC Fund Invitationals. Due to demand and popularity, the tournament now features a record 48 teams that will play in two different tournaments.

One will take place at Erin Hills where 36 teams will begin at 8 a.m. The other 12 teams will play a second tournament at The Club at Lac La Belle starting at 10 a.m.

Mike Bielawski, the Director of Development for the MACC Fund, was instrumental in making this a two-tournament event.

"We had a waiting list of teams that wanted to play," said former Arrowhead coach and tournament director Greg Budzien. "And Mike (Bielawski) said, 'Why don't we try having a second tournament?' He's the brains of the operation."

Perhaps. But make no mistake, there are several brilliant minds that make this one of the state's elite events each year.

While there will be two tournaments for the first time, there remains just one goal: curing childhood cancer. And every year, this event led by the boys golfers at Arrowhead helps make a major difference in that pursuit.

"This event has grown in popularity and steam and we're just so thankful for that," Bielawski said. "The golf almost becomes secondary. There are a lot of coaches and golfers that participate and understand the bigger picture of the day."

Tom Tallmadge, the longtime great Arrowhead coach, started this event back in 2007. And for the first time, the championship trophy has been renamed the Tallmadge Trophy.

Remarkably, more than $850,000 has been raised over the past 15 years to benefit the MACC Fund. And tournament organizers believe there's a chance they can reach $1 million after this year's event.

Each of the 48 teams that play in the tournament are required to raise $1,000 — and several have raised substantially more. As of Thursday, Waunakee's golfers had raised $9,400 and host Arrowhead was second with $8,645.

That money, combined with corporate and individual donations, could push the 16-year total near — or above — seven figures.

"I'd say we have a realistic chance of getting there," Budzien said. "It's pretty exciting."

Bielawski agreed. "Those kinds of dollars can make a serious, serious impact," Bielawski said. "With those numbers you can do some life-saving stuff."

While high school golfers relish the opportunity to play at Erin Hills — home of the 2017 U.S. Open — and a high-level course like The Club at Lac La Belle, everyone understands the big winners are the MACC Fund and the children it helps.

Tallmadge once made towels that said, "Some play so others can live." And that's always been the spirit and message behind this tournament.

Middleton coach Tom Cabalka could take his Cardinals to countless different tournaments each spring. But Cabalka never misses the MACC Fund Invitationals — even if it means a 90-minute drive.

Why? "The focus is not just about a team playing a good round of golf on a great course," said Cabalka, who has led Middleton to a state title and two second-place finishes since 2011. "The focus of the day is about the kids. I think that if this event were played in a cow pasture, teams would still participate."

Tony Pritchard, the fantastic coach at Menomonee Falls, and Hamilton coach Dan Heckman each have top-10 teams this season. And both understand the big picture — that Saturday is about far more than golf.

"I believe the invite makes golfers take a step back and realize and reflect that they're part of the larger world," Heckman said. "I think after the boys go through the fundraising process and then actually get on site at Erin Hills they think it's pretty cool that they can help out people that perhaps may be struggling in life and hopefully contribute in a small way to improving their life. I think it's a great opportunity for our boys to mature as adults and as well as golfers."

Pritchard agreed.

"This is a chance to continue our mission of teaching life through golf," Pritchard said. "Our players are exposed to some stories of brave children and families who have endured some really challenging circumstances — even meeting these little heroes and their families. We want to be a part of something bigger than just golf."

And they are.

Andy Zucker, a standout golfer at Middleton who graduated in 2018, battled childhood cancer himself. And Cabalka remembers watching Zucker — and many other golfers — tear up as they heard more and more about the cause.

"We were having a luncheon after the round and a representative from the MACC Fund was talking about those kids and how we as high school teams were helping this cause," Cabalka said. "I looked over at my player who had gone through what the speaker was talking about, and his eyes were tearing up. I will never forget that moment."

Many other coaches and players have experienced similar moments. That's why they keep coming back and are thrilled to see the tournament grow.

"The invite is a great reminder to the Hamilton golfers as to how blessed they are to have the ability to live a healthy life and play golf," Heckman said. "Secondly, it is a great way for our golf program to go beyond the game of golf and give back to the very people who live in our community."

Added Pritchard: "What the Arrowhead family, Erin Hills and the MACC Fund have pulled together is remarkable. We're honored to be involved each year."

SAVE

This past year, Arrowhead SAVE (Survivor and Veteran Experiences) has participated in numerous community service projects to best honor, serve, and give back to veterans around the Hartland community. One of these is SAVE's main project that we participate in, veteran interviews. Once or twice a month, our Veteran Liaison will reach out to a veteran and set up a time for a veteran interview. These interviews are a chance for SAVE members to listen to the stories of veterans and use them as educational opportunities to learn more about the service and what exactly these veterans did for their country. They allow SAVE to preserve veterans' stories and ensure that their sacrifice, honor, and bravery are never forgotten. SAVE has also found ways to give back to veterans around the Hartland community. The Veteran Coffee event as well as SAVE's Ice Cream Social event have been excellent ways that we can give back to veterans as another way to thank them for all their service. Another way that we gave back to veterans across the state was the running of a toiletry drive for the Milwaukee VA in which we collected thousands of dollars in toiletry donations to benefit veterans in need in the Milwaukee area as well as around Wisconsin. Similarly, SAVE also ran a drive to collect clothing items for Afghan refugees at Fort McCoy. Finally, SAVE this past year has taken on the project of writing hundreds of letters to veterans that we have worked with over the past year. These letters are very meaningful to veterans and they are yet another way that SAVE members can show their thanks, appreciation, and gratitude for all the sacrifice and bravery America's veterans have displayed during their time in the service.
